

March 22, 2007

Okay - you now have interviewed a person (that would be Drew Aber)
Now, you and your group must make a write up of the information gleaned.

You have a variety of ways to approach the task. Remember the samples that you shared with each other. Look on-line or in magazines or other print sources.

This is a group process, which could be hard. Here is my advice. Discuss and decide the approach together. The strongest writer actually pens it. The group reviews and edits and revises. Final result is typed for a group grade.